THE FIRE.

BY J. B. SWITT.

Throws its glare across the ceiling?

What is that which lights the sky-

What can mean that startling cry, And the bells in distance penting?

From your slumbers deep awaken;

deep has left your wondering eyes-

Ding dong, dlng dong--

See the fantes are mounting high-Driven by the wind along!

How the fearful charus swells!

Ring the wild, alarming bells!

Brighter, brighter grows the glenor,

Bells are ringing, londer, nearer;

Hark! the cry is coming nearer!

He is seeking out your dwelling! Join the tide upon the pave---

Join the chorus wildly swelling-

Ding dong, ding dong-

See! the flames are mounting hig

How the fearful chorus swells i

Ring the wild abaraing bells!

Back, his host the waters harling;

Bending down the street to measure

Lapping up its draught of treasure.

Ding dong, ding dong-

See I the llames are mounting hig Driven by the wind along!

How the fencial chorus swells?

Ring the wild almming bells.

Now aloft 'tis wildly whirling

Wheeling, veering, circling round,

Toppling huge walls to the ground,

Fire! flet lire! fire!

Ding dong, ding dong,

Hark! a woman's shrick is beard!

p the creaking rounds they go-

Burdened, back, and very slow,

Fire! fire! fire! fire!

Fire! fire! fire! fire!

Ding dong, ding dong,

Owned sweep the tongues of fire,

Soon to spring in rage, defying

Death, renew the work again,

Fire! fire! fire! fire!

Fire! fire! fire! fire!

Who the wors can e'er relate-

Who will know the certain fate

Many a one this dreary night

Roch the fearful peril sharing

Seeds of devastation dire,

Wild the flery sparks are flying;

Who, to check its progress, daving

Ding dong, ding dong---

See! the flames are mounting high

How the dreadful chorus swells!

What the world of kindness owns

Tis the cry that now will swell-

To the missing tall the knell.

Driven by the wind along!

Ding dong, ding dong, Ring the wild abruning hells

Who recount the tales of sorrow;

Of the missing ones to-morrow?

Lases all his carthly treasure:

Wor, woe, woe, woe,

At the last the foe, subdued,

Dong, dong, dong, dong,

He the rescued one is bringing.

In the window one is springing-

Up the inddersat a word,

There she is-O, save her quickly!

Through the smake increasing thickly

Ding dong, ding dong---See! the finnes are rushing higher,

Driven by the wind along !

Ring the wild alarning bells!

Driven by the wind along!

Pirot that heat fire! fire!

Ding dong, ding dong.

Now the mud destroyer reels:

Now along the roof it steals,

Down the streets the people stream-

Up ! the toeman you must brave;

Up! a fire the town has taken!

Burk apright in hed you rise

Fire! fire! fire! fire!

Fire! fire! fire! fire!

The model operand of this hybrithring the lotanis understands to be the mixing of the policy of the blossom. In order to mix o hybridize, the different varieties mus be in blossom together, and shed their policy at the same time; the wind, in secres, etc., are often active agents in distributing policy, and frequently carry it considerable distances and deposit it, so that it is unsafe to grow different varieties of the same plint, when we wish to keep them distinct and pure, unless there is a considerable intervening distance. Any impregnation of one variety with mother, causes a variation in the seed positived—thus producing a mixed variety, consequently the farmer who seed, thinking to improve his variety, finds to his cost that he has made a unistake.
